DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on February 01, 2010 has been entered.

As discussed during the interview on December 03, 2009, the new system claims 49-78 are under examination, as well as the previously withdrawn method claims 35-42 and analyzer claim 43, as they depend on and include all of the limitations of system claim 49. Claims 35-78 are currently under examination.

Claim Objections

2. Claim 71 is objected to because of the following informalities: last line recites "...the a container...". The Office believes this should read "the container". Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 35-78 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 49 recites "a threaded rotatable spindle for threading into the closure having a threaded depression and for applying a rotational force to the remove the closure." It is not clear how the threaded depression of the closure differs from the previously recited recess having threads disposed therein. It appears the claim is reciting the same element under different names. The recitation of the same element under different names in different parts of the claim or the use of same term to refer to different elements is indefinite. The same term should be used for an element each and every time it is recited.

The phrase "adapted to" is recited throughout the instant claims. Please note it has been held that the recitation that an element is "adapted to" perform a function is not a positive limitation but only requires the ability to so perform. It does not constitute a limitation in any patentable sense. In re Hutchison, 69 USPQ 138.

Claim 37 recites "the clutch having an element adapted to engage the closure". Is this the same or a different element than that recited in claim 49? Same deficiency was found in claim 39.

Claim 40 recites "the closure has a second set of threads disposed on the inner or outer cylindrical wall...". Is this the same or a different set of threads disposed on the inner or outer cylindrical wall as recited in claim 49?

Claim 70 recites "a threaded spindle". Is this the same or a different spindle than that recited in claim 49?

Claim 73 recites "wherein container". The Examiner believes this should be --the container--. Clarification is requested.

The Examiner again respectfully requests Applicant carefully inspect the claims for conformance with US patent practice.

5. Claims 49-78 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential structural cooperative relationships of elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the necessary structural connections. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted structural cooperative relationships are: between the spindle and the clutch. The specification states the clutch rotates the spindle. See for example page 8, lines 13-22. This is not set forth in the claims. In fact, the claims do not structurally link the clutch and the spindle.

Conclusion

6. No claims are allowed.
